

FOOD at the FAIR

Dessert cart at the Festival/65 restaurant in the Gas pavilion

Exotic dishes or familiar favorites... there is a world of wonderful food to enjoy at the New York World's Fair

Traditional Nasig Kuning at the Indonesian pavilion

The pictures in this booklet will give you an idea of the sumptuous variety of appetizing food the Fair offers. There's a great variety in price, too, so make a note of some of the delicious meals you will enjoy when you come to the Fair.

International Delicacies

You can have lunch at the Kum-Kang-San (snack bar) in the Korean pavilion for only $1.10. Or at the outdoor Cafe Belgique in the Belgian Village for 50¢ to $1.75. Shish Kebob at the Morocco pavilion is just $1.00.

And a full-course Chinese dinner at the Chun King restaurant is only 99¢.

You may want to try Nasig Kuning, a traditional thanksgiving meal at the Indonesian pavilion. The cost is $6.50, including entertainment by Indonesian dancers and musicians. For the same price, you can eat as much as you want from the fabulous "cold tray" (smorgasbord) at the Danish pavilion. Or try this idea. Get a "mezze tray" (combination platter) at the Lebanon pavilion for $2.50 and order some "chawarma" (lamb shavings) on the side (99¢) and you'll have enough for two!

Spend as much, or as little as you like. A truly magnificent meal at the Toledo in the Spanish pavilion will cost a minimum of $7.00, while a restaurants in the International pavilions at the Fair which serve enticing native foods. You will be tempted to try them all.

American Favorites

For those who prefer more familiar food, there are over fifty delightful restaurants to choose from, at every price range. Here are a few:

Roast partridge with wild rice and grapes, at the Spanish Toledo restaurant splendidly exotic dinner at the Nile Terrace in the Sudan pavilion will cost a maximum of $3.00. At an in-between price (around $4.50) you can eat in the lofty Tree House at the African pavilion where the children can feed Suzy the giraffe.

This is just a sample, for there are more than forty

Strawberries and whipped cream on a Belgian waffle

The Missouri Snack Patio serves a popular barbecued ham or beef platter for 95¢, and one of the best hot dogs you've ever tasted. Or how about a buffalo steak at the Montana pavilion restaurant—$1.75.

You can spend about $6.50 for an exceptional dinner in the elegant atmosphere of the Festival/65 restaurant at the Festival of Gas pavilion; or you can dine in the charming Nantucket Inn in the Greyhound Post House for $1.95. Tad's Steakhouse in the Wisconsin pavilion offers a full-course steak dinner for $1.29. Carousel Park in the Lake Area offers a chicken dinner for $1.39.

For only 99¢ you can have a refreshing, and genuine, plate of Alaska King Crab at the Alaska pavilion. Or you can have a complete dinner in the attractive Brass Rail Country Farm restaurant for only $2.75.

Enjoy Hawaiian-American food at the Restaurant of the 5 Volcanos in the Hawaii pavilion for $2.95 up or Mexican-American specialties at New Mexico's Hitching Post for $2.49.

Barbecued beef served at the Missouri Snack Patio

Rheingold's Little Old New York offers pleasant dining, indoors or out, from snacks to dinner. Dinner starts at $1.45. The Schaefer pavilion, too, offers Texas Weiners at 25¢, a sumptuous buffet at $3.25.

Enjoy a glamorous view of the Fair from the sky-high Top of the Fair restaurant, where excellent family lunches cost $3.50 and up, or bask in New Orleans elegance at Bourbon Street's French Market, where the prices start at 25¢ and the food is delicious.

Snacks, Treats and Specialties!

Throughout the Fair, and particularly in the International Plaza, you will come across dozens of snack bars that offer exotic fare for very little.

You'll want to try fishwiches, chunks of sugar cane, Cus-Cus (Guinea), egg foo yumburgers, fresh pineapple dogs (Israeli-American and drinks).

Try the Bel Gem waffles at the Belgian Village. Whipped cream and strawberries on a waffle. 99¢. Soft shell crabs at Fisherman's Wharf in the Maryland pavilion are delicious—60¢.

Look for the Ecuadorian banana dogs—banana fritters on a stick for 50¢—in the International Plaza.

You get all the 7-Up you can drink with your platter of delectable international sandwiches at the 7-Up pavilion, all for $1.50.

Watch pizza being made at Mastro Pizza, and then have a generous slice for 25¢.

Cool off with frozen mocha custard at the Swiss pavilion—15¢.

As you can see, the World's Fair is a world of wonderful food at prices you can afford. Come to the Fair—and bring your appetite!

© NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR—1965

Have some orange juice at the Florida pavilion